
← Back to the previous page

Operators

Who actually runs what — TRTC, New Taipei Metro, Taoyuan Metro, and eventually TRA and THSR.

Ridership maps draw one network; corporately there are several. The metro alone is run by three companies — Taipei's, New Taipei's and Taoyuan's — and the boundaries between them explain oddities that confuse riders, from ticketing differences to why one "MRT" line opens at a different hour than another. TRA and THSR will join this section when the conventional and high speed rail pages exist for them to operate.

Each operator page states what the company runs, what it does not, and where its published sources live. Corporate history — founding, ownership, subsidiaries — is kept to what a primary source supports.

4 entries

Taipei Rapid Transit Corporation

The company that runs the Taipei Metro and the Maokong Gondola, separate from the government departments that build the lines.

New Taipei Metro Corporation

New Taipei City's operator of the Danhai, Ankeng and Circular light-rail systems, with the Sanying Line added to the operating record in 2026.

Taoyuan Metro Corporation

The company designated to run the Airport MRT, a public operator formed by Taoyuan, Taipei and New Taipei governments.

Taichung Metro Corporation

The city-owned operator of Taichung's Green Line, responsible for running the railway after the city and national agencies delivered its construction packages.

An independent, non-commercial reference site. Not affiliated with Taipei Rapid Transit Corporation, Taipei City Government, or any bus operator. Line colours are the official values published by each operator through Taiwan MOTC's open data platform. About this site.

Station names, codes and sequence from TDX Transport Data eXchange, Ministry of Transportation and Communications, operators TRTC, NTMC, TYMC, and TMRT. Government open data. Retrieved 2026-08-22; source last updated 2016-11-23. The 12 Sanying station records absent from TDX are sourced directly to New Taipei Metro and government publications on their pages. Provenance.