Kinmen island ferry services

Jin–Lie domestic ferries and the cross-strait mini-three-links from Kinmen, with dated August 2026 schedules, service fees, operators and the limits of the published fare data.

KINMEN ISLAND FERRY SERVICES
DOMESTIC ISLAND ROUTE Shuitou–Jiugong (Jin–Lie) [6]	AUGUST 2026 XIAMEN SCHEDULE 12 round trips per day in the MOTC operating summary [2]	NON-KINMEN PASSENGER SERVICE FEE FROM 2026-05-01 NT$160 [5]

Kinmen's ferry picture has two different scales. Jin–Lie ferries connect the main island's Shuitou with Jiugong on Lieyu (Little Kinmen), while the mini-three-links carry passengers from Shuitou to Xiamen's Wutong and Quanzhou's Shijing. [1] [6] Treating them as one route would hide both the domestic island connection and the separate border-crossing booking process.

Jin–Lie: Shuitou–Jiugong

The official county timetable PDF fetched for this research has ferry rows for Jiugong departures and Shuitou departures. Its extracted timetable shows a Jiugong sequence beginning at 06:30 and extending through 21:30, and a Shuitou sequence beginning at 07:00 and extending through 22:00. [6] The PDF also warns that each sailing's motorcycle or bicycle carriage is handled according to the day's on-site situation, so the printed time columns do not guarantee that a particular vehicle will be loaded. [6] The source PDF does not expose an issue date in its extracted text; this page therefore labels it as an official timetable record retrieved on 26 August 2026, not as a timeless promise of half-hourly service. [6]

The route's operating history changed after the Kinmen Bridge opened. A full official notice from the Public Vehicle and Ship Management Office, dated 22 February 2023, says that from 1 March 2023 the ferry was adjusted to morning 07:00–08:30 and evening 17:00–18:30 windows. [7] That announcement is historical evidence of the post-bridge service policy, not a current schedule; the later timetable PDF preserves a different, broader set of departure columns. [7] [6]

The current visitor fare is TBC in this guide. The county government's full vehicle-fare FAQ does not print a number; it sends the reader to a separate vehicle-and-ship-office FAQ, and that linked endpoint was not safely fetchable during this verification. [8] This is an evidence boundary, not a claim that the service is free or that no fare exists.

Mini-three-links to Xiamen

The MOTC's full cross-strait operations page identifies two Kinmen passenger routes: Kinmen–Xiamen and Kinmen–Quanzhou.^[2] It says that, from 14 January 2025, the Kinmen–Xiamen route was increased to 12 round trips per day and Kinmen–Quanzhou to two round trips per day, with later changes to follow policy.^[2] The same page lists named vessels and their published capacities: the Xiamen-route entries range from 280 to 350 passengers, while the Quanzhou vessel 八方 is listed at 238 passengers.^[2]

The August 2026 Xiamen PDF turns that operating summary into a dated roster.^[3] Its heading exposes 08:30 through 17:30 departure columns and its date rows assign vessels such as 金星6號, 馬可波羅1號, 新武夷, 新金祥龍, 迅安 and 和平新星 to the Kinmen–Wutong and Wutong–Kinmen services.^[3] The 26 August row is therefore useful for identifying the scheduled vessel rotation, but it is not a substitute for the booking system if a sailing is changed or sold out.^[3]

The August 2026 Quanzhou PDF is much smaller: it lists 八方輪 for every date and four time columns, 09:50 and 16:35 in the Kinmen-to-Shijing direction and 08:30 and 11:10 in the return direction.^[4] The MOTC's full sailing page gives the approximate crossing times as 30 minutes for Kinmen–Wutong and 60 minutes for Kinmen–Shijing.^[1]

Booking, service fees and documents

The Kinmen tourism notice updated 12 June 2026 links both the downloadable mini-three-links timetable and the 金廈泉小三通售票網 and i海台 booking sites.^[5] That notice also records a passenger-service-fee change effective 1 May 2026: NT$100 per trip for Kinmen-registered passengers and NT$160 for non-Kinmen passengers.^[5] It calls these amounts 旅客服務費, or passenger service fees, rather than presenting them as the vessel ticket fare; the two should not be silently added together or treated as competing fare claims.^[5]

The notice says a 金馬證 can establish the resident category directly, while other passengers seeking the NT$100 rate must show a household-registration document; passengers without acceptable proof are charged the NT$160 category.^[5] Travellers still need the documents required for cross-strait entry and exit, and the notice specifically mentions passports or Mainland Travel Permits for the People's Republic of China.^[5] The official August schedule PDFs publish booking telephone numbers by vessel/operator, so a dated booking check is preferable to copying a generic departure pattern.^{[3] [4]}

Legal basis and suspension history

The mini-three-links exist under a specific statutory carve-out, not general cross-strait shipping policy. Article 18 of the Offshore Islands Development Act (離島建設條例) lets the government open pilot navigation links between Kinmen, Matsu, Penghu and mainland China "in advance of" full cross-strait links, before Taiwan and mainland China otherwise permitted direct transport.^[9] Its wording: 「為促進離島發展，在臺灣本島與大陸地區全面通航之前，得先行試辦金門、馬祖、澎湖地區與

大陸地區通航...其實施辦法，由行政院定之。」^[9] The Executive Yuan's implementing regulation, the Regulations for Trial Implementation of Navigation between Kinmen, Matsu, Penghu and Mainland China (試辦金門馬祖澎湖與大陸地區通航實施辦法), is made directly under that article.^[10]

That regulation's Article 32 is the mechanism behind every suspension the route has had: the Executive Yuan may halt all or part of the trial "by order" where national interest or security is endangered, or for other major cause.^[10] Its text: 「本辦法試辦期間，如有危害國家利益、安全之虞或其他重大事由時，得由行政院以命令終止一部或全部之實施。」^[10] The route has been suspended twice under this framework: roughly two months in 2003 for SARS, and just under three years from February 2020 for COVID-19.^[11] The 2023 resumption was phased rather than immediate — a Lunar New Year trial (7 January–6 February 2023) limited to Kinmen and Matsu residents and mainland-born spouses, full resumption of all four passenger routes by 19 February 2023, mainland-born spouses with visiting-relative documentation admitted from 20 July 2023, and foreign nationals and Hong Kong/Macau residents admitted from 27 September 2023.^[11] This account is a news report, not the Executive Yuan's own resumption order; its quotation of Article 32 matches the statute text, but the specific resumption dates rest on this one secondary source and would benefit from a primary Mainland Affairs Council or Executive Yuan announcement.^[11]

What remains date-sensitive

The MOTC operating summary is a policy-and-fleet record last checked in August 2026, while the August PDFs are date-specific rosters and the county ferry PDF does not expose its publication date.^[2]^[3]^[6] The sources reviewed here do not establish a current Jin–Lie passenger fare, an official machine-readable live domestic ferry board, or a complete station-and-vessel accessibility inventory. Those fields remain TBC until the vehicle-and-ship office's linked fare and timetable pages can be fetched in full.^[8]
