Network

The joint-operation system — one brand, one fare structure, many private companies — and the route numbering that encodes more than it appears to.

The joint-operation network

Around 280 routes, fourteen private companies and one brand. Four city regulations set out how the money actually moves — and the central revenue pool everyone repeats is in none of them.

Operator service ratings

Twice a year since 1992, Taipei has graded its bus operators 優/甲/乙/丙/丁 on 26 indicators — and the grade can cost an operator its routes. It is a national requirement, not a Taipei quirk — New Taipei, Taoyuan, Taichung, Kaohsiung and Tainan each run their own separate scheme.

The 2030 electrification programme

A NT$64.3 billion, seven-year national programme to convert Taiwan's bus fleet to electric — and the Legislative Yuan's own record of it running well behind target.

Routes

1051 pages

Individual bus routes — operator, corridor, stop list and frequency.

Bus depots and operating sites

Sourced bus stations, dispatch sites and charging-depot procurements, with capacity and opening gaps left visible.

Danan Guandu charging depot

Danan Bus's Guandu electric-bus charging procurement record.

Depot electrification and charging infrastructure

No consolidated national depot-charger registry exists — but named installations show buses sharing MRT depots at night, rationed charging bays, and a public-EV-charger boom that mostly isn't about buses at all.

San Chung Bus operating sites

San Chung Bus's published dispatch-site and maintenance-yard network.

Taipei Bus stations and facilities

Taipei Bus's published station, depot and repair-facility directory.

Bus models

Sourced bus vehicle records, propulsion evidence and the fields that remain unpublished.

Alighter (Tang Eng)

Tang Eng Vehicle Technology's CTP-alliance electric bus, exported to Guatemala but absent from Taiwan's own VSCC qualified-model register.

CNG buses

Compressed natural gas never took hold in Taiwan's bus fleets — one documented six-vehicle Taipei pilot in 1999, no VSCC type-approval trail, and no source naming a manufacturer.

Historic and domestic bus manufacturers

What Taipei's buses actually were before the current import-and-electrify era — two dated 1970s/80s fleet purchases, and the domestic coachbuilders that bodied imported chassis after privatisation.

Imported diesel bus and coach chassis

Six imported brands — Hino, Isuzu, Mercedes-Benz, Volvo, Scania, MAN — supply the chassis for Taiwan's highway coaches and part of its city-bus fleet, bodied by domestic coachbuilders. Only one of the six has a confirmed public government type-approval trail.

King Long

King Long year-group and route-class records from Dàyou Bus's official fleet page.

Master electric bus family

Master Transportation (成運汽車製造)'s four electric bus body types, with VSCC-registered models and an unreconciled delivery record.

RAC Electric Vehicles Inc. (華德動能科技)'s current electric bus, with VSCC type-approval history spanning four model codes.

Taiwan Yutong 6128HG

A Taiwan Yutong 6128HG identified in the Dàyou Bus collision factual report, with chassis specifications from a separate VSCC certification filing.

VSCC electric bus qualified-model registry

The government type-approval register of Taiwan's qualified electric bus manufacturers and models, read directly from VSCC's own disclosure PDFs.

Regional bus networks

City and county bus networks beyond the Taipei core, with dated Hsinchu, Taichung, Tainan and Kaohsiung layers.

Hsinchu regional buses

The Hsinchu iBus portal's city, county express, Zhubei, tourist and medical-bus categories, preserved as a dated route and stop data layer.

Kaohsiung regional buses

Kaohsiung's TDX snapshot exposes 316 route records, 617 direction runs, 19,191 ordered stops and 30 operator records; the municipal route index separately reports 197 routes.

Taichung regional buses

Taichung's official route-map CSV preserves 392 city-bus entries and ordered stop lists; the city also publishes 26 fixed-departure 小黃公車 routes with reservation rules.

Tainan regional buses

Tainan's live TDX city-bus catalogue exposes route identities, operators and ordered stops, while the city publishes seven Minguo years of annual route ridership and a separate 52-route 小黃公車 network.

Taipei's city buses run as 聯營公車 — a joint operation: private companies operating under one fare structure, one numbering scheme and one brand, so that to a passenger it looks like a single network when it is not. That structural fact — how many companies, how many routes, and the four city regulations that actually set out how the money moves — is explained in full on the joint-operation network [\[/bus/network/joint-operation/\]](/bus/network/joint-operation/).

Beyond Taipei and New Taipei, this section also covers the city bus networks of Taichung [\[/bus/regional/taichung/\]](/bus/regional/taichung/), Kaohsiung [\[/bus/regional/kaohsiung/\]](/bus/regional/kaohsiung/), Tainan [\[/bus/regional/tainan/\]](/bus/regional/tainan/) and Hsinchu [\[/bus/regional/hsinchu/\]](/bus/regional/hsinchu/), plus national intercity coach [\[/bus/intercity/\]](/bus/intercity/) services — each with its own operators, fare structure and, where one exists, a rating or evaluation scheme distinct from Taipei's.

What this section covers

Network. This site's Network [\[/bus/network/\]](/bus/network/) pages hold the joint-operation history, the route-numbering conventions, payment and ticketing infrastructure, the operator service-rating schemes (Taipei's since 1992, New Taipei's separate scheme, and others where a city runs one), and the 2030 electrification programme.

Operators. The TDX operator index [\[/bus/operators/\]](/bus/operators/) lists the operator records in the committed pull, with route associations generated from the same data pull ^[1], deepened with ownership and corporate history where sources exist. The relationships between them — including who owns whom — are poorly documented in English, which makes this the part most likely to be worth reading rather than merely present.

Routes. Route pages are generated from the same TDX pull ^[1]; this site explains the route-numbering system separately so a bare number means something before any individual route page does.

Vehicles and garages. Models [\[/bus/models/\]](/bus/models/) covers electric, diesel and imported chassis with VSCC/MOTC type-approval records where they exist, and Depots [\[/bus/depots/\]](/bus/depots/) covers garages and charging infrastructure — both report a field as TBC rather than filling it from an unverified fleet-list transcription.

Fares and payment. Section-based fares, the EasyCard transfer discount between bus and metro, and where the section boundaries actually fall — which is the thing visitors get wrong most often.

See about [\[/about/\]](/about/) for how this site sources material.
