Tainan regional buses

Tainan's live TDX city-bus catalogue exposes route identities, operators and ordered stops, while the city publishes seven Minguo years of annual route ridership and a separate 52-route 小黃公車 network.

TAINAN REGIONAL BUSES
TDX ROUTE ENTRIES 165 ^[2]	ORDERED DIRECTION RECORDS 692 ^[4]	ORDERED STOP RECORDS 23,386 ^[4]	TDX OPERATOR RECORDS 10 ^[5]

ROUTE-LEVEL HISTORICAL FARE SERIES TBC

Tainan `[/rail/thsr/stations/tainan/]`'s public-bus data has several official layers, and they are not interchangeable. The Government Data Open Platform describes the route and stop datasets as Tainan Transportation Bureau data sourced through TDX, while the live TDX responses expose the route identities and ordered stop records used here.^[1] ^[3] ^[2] ^[4] The committed Tainan route JSON `[/data/tainan-bus-routes.json]` keeps that distinction visible: route metadata, sub-routes and source update times are separate from the direction-level stop arrays.^[2] ^[4]

The city-bus route layer

The route response supplies route names, route IDs, operator references, sub-route directions, terminal labels, fare descriptions and official route-map links.^[2] A route can contain more than one sub-route, including extensions or direction-specific labels, so the data layer retains the source's sub-route UID and name rather than flattening every branch into a bare route number.^[2] The stop response then joins by route and sub-route UID; each stop keeps the source stop ID, sequence, boarding flag and coordinate where published.^[4]

This is a structure for navigation and comparison, not a live arrival board. The Tainan portal separately advertises dynamic information, route maps, stop information, transfer queries, fare queries and timetable/download functions.^[14] The route JSON's `UpdateTime` values are the source timestamps for the snapshot, while the page retrieval date is 25 August 2026; those dates should be read together when routes are used for a journey.^[2] ^[4]

SNAPSHOT FIELD	VALUE
TDX route entries	165 ^[2]
Direction-level stop records	692 ^[4]
Ordered stop records	23,386 ^[4]
TDX operator records	10 ^[5]

Operators, fares and transfers

The operator response publishes ten records with names, phone numbers, websites and update times.^[5] That count is a count of TDX operator records, not an independent legal-company audit: route records can name a bus company, a taxi fleet or a small-bus operator in the same city catalogue.^{[2] [5]}

The fare page describes a fare system with several layers. For 2026, Tainan residents using the City Card receive the stated urban-route weekday half-fare and weekend-free treatment, while the page gives a basic-mileage-free rule for main and branch routes when an electronic card is tapped on and off.^[15] The same page states a two-hour TRA-to-bus transfer discount and a separate rule for HSR express routes, including the condition that HSR passengers travel free.^[15] These are network and eligibility rules, not a route-by-route historical fare series; that series remains TBC in this page.^[15]

Annual route ridership

The city publishes monthly route ridership with route name, origin/destination and important stops, route category, operator, Minguo year, twelve month fields and an annual total.^[6] The committed layer includes the seven annual resources listed by the official catalogue, from Minguo 108 through 114, preserving the source year labels rather than silently converting them to Gregorian years.^{[6] [7] [8] [9] [10] [11] [12] [13]}

The following table is a no-JavaScript, screen-reader-readable network total derived by summing each fetched annual CSV's route totals. It is not an official single "network total" field, and it should not be compared with a station-level MRT total without checking scope.^{[7] [8] [9] [10] [11] [12] [13]}

MINGUO YEAR	GREGORIAN YEAR	SUMMED ROUTE TOTALS
108	2019	46,625,144 ^[7]
109	2020	36,182,134 ^[8]
110	2021	12,672,621 ^[9]

MINGUO YEAR	GREGORIAN YEAR	SUMMED ROUTE TOTALS
111	2022	13,301,069 ^[10]
112	2023	15,116,658 ^[11]
113	2024	15,947,047 ^[12]
114	2025	16,787,769 ^[13]

The sharp fall between 109 and 110 is visible in the source-derived sum, but this page does not assign a cause to it: the ridership dataset supplies counts and categories, not an explanatory series. ^[8] ^[9] The 114 resource was available when the catalogue metadata was last updated on 11 August 2026, and the page identifies the publication cadence as annual. ^[6]

小黃公車

Tainan describes 小黃公車 as city-bus service operated with taxi vehicles, with fixed routes, stops and timetables plus a reservation mode for trips within one kilometre of a route stop when booked by 17:00 the day before. ^[16] The official Q&A also describes reservation stops in places without a fixed route or fixed timetable, so a stop listed in that part of the page must not be treated as a normal scheduled stop. ^[16] Its current route table names 52 unique routes across 32 administrative districts and identifies 台一大車隊 or 中華衛星大車隊 for the grouped services. ^[16]

The city has continued to change the service model. A recent official notice describes 黃3 and 黃16 as joint bus-and-taxi services, adds 黃23 between 西寮代天府 and 柳營奇美醫院, and states a reservation window from 06:00 to 22:00 for qualifying bookings. ^[17] The JSON preserves the grouped route table and unique route names, but leaves individual departure times to the official portal's timetable layer rather than copying a dynamic or image-only schedule into a static claim. ^[16] ^[14]

Operators — a network that keeps changing hands

Tainan's city-bus operator roster has been actively reshaped by tender through the 2020s, unlike Taipei `[/rail/thsr/stations/taipei/]`'s stable joint-operation group ^[23]. 興南客運 (Shing Nan Bus) is the oldest, tracing to 台灣輕鐵株式會社 (1921) and a 1941 merger into 興南乘合自動車株式會社 ^[18]. 新營客運 (Xinying Bus), formally established January 1950, joined the Tainan system in a first batch of 44 transferred highway routes — sources disagree on whether that was 2011 or 2012 ^[19]. 府城客運 (Fucheng Bus) is younger and structurally distinct: founded 2013 as a subsidiary spun off from Kaohsiung Bus (高雄客運, also documented on this site's Kaohsiung page `[/bus/regional/kaohsiung/]`) specifically to give Tainan a dedicated city-bus brand, after the original, differently-owned 台南客運 stopped running city routes in 2003 ^[20]. 漢程客運 (Han-Cheng Bus), founded 2013 in Kaohsiung as part of the same 台灣愛巴士 交通聯盟 alliance as 巨業交運/巨業交通, expanded into Tainan in December 2019 as its fourth operator ^[21].

Route 77 traces a small chain of hand-offs that is itself informative. Launched 2016 as Tainan's first electric-bus route, it passed from its original operator to 府城客運 and then, from 10 April 2023, to 漢程客運 — the same 40 daily trips and alignment carried through each transfer^[22]. A 2024-08-21 network reorganisation awarded 巨業交通 nine routes (existing and new, first batch targeted for Q4 2024) and 統聯客運 ten routes, making 統聯客運 Tainan's sixth operator from 3 January 2025^[23] — after the TDX snapshot above was retrieved, so that operator may not yet appear in the committed route/operator records.

Conflicts

新營客運's own zh.wikipedia article and the separate 大台南公車 overview article disagree on the year it joined the Tainan network — 2011 in one, 2012 in the other, describing what appears to be the same 44-route transfer^[19]. Neither is independently corroborated against a Tainan city government primary source; both are published rather than picked.

Gaps and conflicts

The route and stop datasets provide current structure, but not a historical route-change log, reliability series, depot allocation, vehicle assignment or accessibility inventory.^{[1] [3] [5]} TDX provides route and stop update timestamps, while the ridership catalogue provides annual route totals; neither is a complete timetable history.^{[2] [6]} The city portal and the 小黃公車 Q&A are therefore retained as the service-information boundary, and any timetable or route change should be refreshed from those sources before publication.^{[14] [16]}

The official sources disagree on the current 小黃公車 count. The Q&A page says 52 routes across 32 administrative districts, while the 5 August 2026 expansion notice says that adding 黃3, 黃16 and 黃23 increased the total from 46 to 49 routes across 31 districts.^{[16] [17]} These may be different publication snapshots or scopes, but the fetched sources do not explain the difference. The data layer preserves the Q&A table's 52 unique route names and reports the notice's 49 separately; it does not average them or choose a winner.^{[16] [17]}
